RESYN

The food and drink manufacturing industry is a demanding environment that requires floor surfaces to be hardwearing, hygienic, anti-slip and resistant to product spillage and temperature variations.

With increasing pressures being placed on the industry to provide a clean, hygienic and safe working environment it is essential to choose the correct floor finish.

Through years of experience within this sector and by working in close conjunction with our clients, we have carefully selected our product range enabling us to provide high quality flooring solutions to suit any flooring challenge. With a vast array of products and processes involved within this sector it is imperative that we thoroughly evaluate our customers' requirements, alongside the floors suitability under production conditions.

MINIMAL DISRUPTION

With so much pressure being placed on food and drink manufacturers to maximise output, the time to complete floor refurbishment projects is limited. RESYN offer a range of fast curing resin flooring solutions to help minimise disruption to operational procedures.

We always work in close conjunction with our customers to ensure that our installations have a minimal impact on production.

- ▶ Solutions that cure within just 2 hours.
- ▶ Flexible working programmes to minimise downtime.
- ▶ Turnkey solutions to maximise programme efficiency.

LONG-TERM DURABILITY

Durability, performance and longevity are key considerations when choosing floors. Finding a flooring solution that can withstand the high footfall and relentless demands of a busy manufacturing environment and remain fit for purpose can be challenging.

- ▶ Excellent resistance to physical and chemical attack.
- ▶ Exceptional bond to concrete, steel, tiles and marine ply substrates
- ▶ Maximum strength and durability offer better lifetime value.
- ▶ Bespoke warranties.

HYGIENIC & SLIP RESISTANT

Hygiene is extremely important to the food and drink manufacturing industry and therefore reducing the risk of bacteria is essential.

Resin flooring systems often provide an impermeable surface that is seamless and does not pinhole therefore reducing the risk of bacteria growth.

Resin flooring can be adjusted to offer varying levels of slip resistance to match the requirements of the environment.

- ▶ Seamless and monolithic floors, reduce risk of bacteria.
- ▶ Exceptional bond to substrates reduces delamination to improve hygiene and reduce trip hazards.
- ▶ Excellent levels of slip resistance, even under wet or production conditions.

REDUCED MAINTENANCE

Ongoing maintenance costs can drastically increase a products life cycle cost, making them more expensive over time. Maintenance repairs can also disrupt operational processes.

Furthermore, damaged floor finishes can present a trip hazard and therefore reducing risks to staff is crucial.

- ▶ Excellent bond to substrates reduces the risk of delamination.
- ▶ Seamless finish reduces weak points and areas that are susceptible to failure such as welded joints or seams.

COMPREHENSIVE CONSULTATIONS

A clear understanding of your specific circumstances, requirements and priorities is vital to identifying the correct flooring solution.

We recognise that time constraints, slip resistance, hygiene, durability, temperature and chemical attack are key requirements of the food and drink processing industry. Upon initial contact we complete comprehensive consultations to discuss all factors including, the subfloor, temperature and chemical resistance.

- ▶ Floors that are fit for purpose.
- ▶ Accurate quotations and proposals.
- ▶ Realistic installation programmes.
- ▶ Reduced risks of additional costs and onsite delays.

RESYN

Long Clawson Dairy have been working with RESYN for approximately 15 years and have always been satisfied with the service they provide.

They have continued to provide excellent advice, support when requested, and their installations have always been completed to a high standard.

As a Stilton Cheese manufacturer with long processing hours, we find it challenging to complete refurbishment projects, but RESYN have always accommodated our requests and worked on installation programmes to suit our schedule.

We would certainly recommend them as a company.
